

2025 GLOBAL MBA RANKINGS

With ESG moving from a fringe concern to a mandated necessity, driven partly by global regulation, conscious consumerism, and competitive ambition, research (Bloomberg, 2024) suggests there is strong, long-term support for ESG practices amongst C-suite executives and investors. While this is reflected in the growing appetite for sustainability and CSR amongst prospective students (GMAC, 2024), some commentators have suggested business schools need to be doing more to develop sustainability literacy.

Looking beyond token modules and electives, this year's Green MBA Rankings showcase business schools that are championing sustainable business practices and, in so doing, developing responsible leaders capable of driving meaningful change.

While this year's Green MBA Rankings are concentrated on the percentage of core courses focused on ethical, social, and environmental impact, consideration has also been given to experiential learning opportunities, university-wide sustainability initiatives/partnerships, faculty research, delivery methods, and accreditation.
